- Allianz Global Assistance will not provide a replacement battery where the battery manufacturing or date codes have been destroyed or tampered with or where there is no record of purchase of the battery.

Conditions—free roadside replacement

Free roadside battery replacement is subject to:

- availability of Allianz Global Assistance service providers in your area
- any circumstances beyond our control, including but not limited to, extraordinary delays caused by extreme weather conditions such as snow fall and flooding
- restricted access area requirements
- circumstances reasonably considered to be a force majeure event.

Important information

In the event that battery replacement is not covered under this warranty, you will be responsible for the Allianz Global Assistance service provider callout cost and new battery if required.

Allianz Global Assistance is under no obligation under this warranty to replace a battery where your vehicle is immobile in a workshop undergoing repairs, or undergoing mechanical or electrical repairs at your premises.

You are responsible for all costs arising from work or repairs carried out by a Allianz Global Assistance service provider that fall outside the scope of this warranty.

Liability under this warranty

This limited warranty is your sole and exclusive remedy against Allianz Global Assistance, the battery supplier and any service provider in respect of defects in your battery, subject to your legal (statutory) rights under Australian laws that cannot be excluded.

To the extent those rights cannot be excluded, our liability under those provisions is limited to the replacement of the battery or the resupply of the roadside battery replacement service.

Neither Allianz Global Assistance, its battery supplier or service providers are liable for any indirect or consequential losses or damage arising out of the provision or failure to provide any benefits and services under this warranty, whether as a result of negligence or otherwise.

Battery tips and safety

When working with or in close proximity to the battery always:

- remove all conductive jewellery i.e. rings, bracelets, watches etc.
- as batteries can give off explosive gases always avoid sparks and flammable sources eg. cigarettes
- seek professional advice before disconnecting or charging a battery
- secure your battery and inspect terminal condition and tightness regularly
- do not attempt to jump start batteries, unless you are sure of the correct procedure
- do not over discharge battery or leave in a “flattened” state
- ensure that your cars alternator charge rate is correct. At a minimum, have it checked at every major service.
